Background

Rationale
(As expressed in Foundation for the Atlantic Canada Arts Education Curriculum)

Education in the arts is fundamental to the aesthetic, physical, emotional, intellectual, and social growth of the individual. It provides students with unique ways of knowing, doing, living, and belonging in the global community. It also has a key role in the development of creativity and imagination.

Through arts education, students come to understand the values and attitudes held by individuals and communities. Learning in the arts contributes to an empathetic worldview and an appreciation and understanding of the relationship among peoples and their environments.

Education in the arts and learning in other subject areas through the arts develop the Atlantic Canada essential graduation learnings: aesthetic expression, citizenship, communication, personal development, problem solving, and technological competence.

Curriculum Organization

In 1993, New Brunswick, working with the other Atlantic Provinces under the auspices of the Atlantic Provinces Education Foundation (APEF), began developing regionally common curricula for mathematics, science, English language arts, social studies, arts education, and technology education. In 2001, the Foundation for the Atlantic Canada Arts Education Curriculum (Document 843280) was published.

Within the curricula there are various organizational strata. At the broadest level are six Essential Graduation Learnings (EGL’s). Essential Graduation Learnings are statements describing the knowledge, skills, and attitudes expected of all students who graduate from high school. They are not unique to one specific subject or discipline. Rather, Essential Graduation Learnings are relevant to all subject areas. They function as the overarching framework into which all curricula fits.

One of the Essential Graduation Learnings states, “Graduates will be able to respond with critical awareness to various forms of the arts and be able to express themselves through the arts.” This EGL is divided into eight General Curriculum Outcomes (GCO’s), which are common to Visual Art, Music, Drama, and Dance. The General Curriculum Outcomes (GCO’s) are then grouped into three strands.
INTRODUCTION

STRAND 1
- CREATING AND PRESENTING

STRAND 2
- UNDERSTANDING AND CONNECTING CONTEXTS OF TIME, PLACE AND COMMUNITY

STRAND 3
- PERCEIVING, REFLECTING, AND RESPONDING

Key-Stage Outcomes further define expected student achievement for each General Curriculum Outcome. In the arts, New Brunswick defines its Key-Stage Outcomes at grades 3, 6, 9, and 12.

Specific Curriculum Outcomes are used to articulate expected student achievement within a single grade level. Specific Curriculum Outcomes correlate to Key-Stage Outcomes. Within the main text of the Visual Arts Education Curriculum: Grade Eleven document the outcomes listed in the far-left column are Specific Curriculum Outcomes (SCO’s). These are not listed in hierarchical order.
Curriculum Organization

6 Essential Graduation Learnings (EGL’s)
Developed by New Brunswick in collaboration with APEF
Applied Regionally
Common across the entire curriculum for all subject areas at all grade levels

General Curriculum Outcomes (GCO’s)
Developed by New Brunswick in collaboration with APEF
Applied Regionally
Common only to the Arts (Visual Art, Music, Drama, and Dance)
The General Curriculum Outcomes are grouped into 3 strands

Key Stage Arts Outcomes (KSO’s)
Developed by New Brunswick and Applied Provincially
Applied to the arts at grades 3, 6, 9 and 12

Specific Visual Art Curriculum Outcomes (SCO’s)
Developed by New Brunswick and Applied Provincially
Specific to a subject area and grade level (Art 110)

The Visual Arts Education Curriculum: Grade Eleven is designed to guide all grade 11 students through meaningful, developmentally appropriate, and comprehensive art education experiences.
Program Characteristics

The Visual Arts Education Curriculum: Grade Eleven program contributes to a multi-disciplinary, interrelated school curriculum. While being engaged in art activities, students learn more than art content and skills. As with any creative endeavour, many thought processes, learning strategies, and ways of expression are refined and transferred to other aspects of life. Like other art forms, visual art offers unique experiences from which a better understanding of the world can emerge. Students who are engaged in such a program have the opportunity to develop a comprehensive awareness, appreciation, and understanding of personal life experiences and events.

The Visual Arts Education Curriculum: Grade Eleven curriculum guide provides students with a means to acquire a developmentally appropriate comprehensive art education through the three strands of General Curriculum Outcomes. The first strand is Creating/Making and Presenting. The second strand is Understanding and Connecting Contexts of Time, Place, and Community. The third strand is Perceiving, Reflecting, and Responding. Teachers must continually work at balancing the delivery of the art program.

The New Brunswick Department of Education and Early Childhood Development stresses the need to design and implement projects and lessons that provide equal opportunities for all students according to their abilities, needs and interests. Teachers must be aware of and make adaptations to accommodate the diverse range of learners in their class. In order to adapt to the needs of all learners, teachers must create opportunities that would permit students to have their learning styles addressed. When making instructional decisions, teachers must consider individuals’ learning needs, preferences and strengths, and the abilities, experiences, interests, and values that learners bring to the classroom. Ideally, every student should find her/his learning opportunities maximized in the fine arts classroom.

While this curriculum guide presents specific outcomes for each unit, it must be acknowledged that students will progress at different rates. Teachers should provide activities and strategies that accommodate student diversity, and validate students when they achieve the outcomes to the maximum of their abilities.

It is important that teachers articulate high expectations for all students, and ensure that all students have equitable opportunities to experience success as they work toward the achievement of designated outcomes. A teacher should adapt classroom organization, teaching strategies, assessment practices, time, and resources to address students’ needs and build on their strengths.
Universal Design for Learning

The New Brunswick Department of Education and Early Childhood Development’s definition of inclusion states that every child has the right to expect that … his or her learning outcomes, instruction, assessment, interventions, accommodations, modifications, supports, adaptations, additional resources and learning environment will be designed to respect his or her learning style, needs and strengths.

Universal Design for Learning is a “framework for guiding educational practice that provides flexibility in the ways information is presented, in the ways students respond or demonstrate knowledge and skills, and in the ways students are engaged. It also “…reduces barriers in instruction, provides appropriate accommodations, supports, and challenges, and maintains high achievement expectations for all students, including students with disabilities and students who are limited English proficient.” (CAST, 2011).

In an effort to build on the established practice of differentiation in education, the Department of Education and Early Childhood Development supports Universal Design for Learning for all students. New Brunswick curricula is created with universal design for learning principles in mind. Outcomes are written so that students may access and represent their learning in a variety of ways, through a variety of modes. Three tenets of universal design inform the design of this curriculum. Teachers are encouraged to follow these principles as they plan and evaluate learning experiences for their students:

- Multiple means of representation: provide diverse learners options for acquiring information and knowledge
- Multiple means of action and expression: provide learners options for demonstrating what they know
- Multiple means of engagement: tap into learners’ interests, offer appropriate challenges, and increase motivation

For further information on Universal Design for Learning, view online information at http://www.cast.org/ and in the appendices section of this document.
Assessment

Teachers make decisions about program delivery based on the results of ongoing formal and informal assessment processes. With timely applications of assessment strategies, teachers can determine what outcomes and experiences need increased emphasis. In this way, the assessment process shapes the learning activities of the future.

When determining how well a student has learned a concept, process, or skill, teachers must consider the vast array of learning styles that might be present in any classroom.

Assessment Strategies

Effective assessment of learning requires diverse strategies that gather information in a systematic way. Many strategies, including the following, can be used as formative as well as summative assessment. In planning art experiences, use a broad, balanced range of strategies that will give students multiple opportunities to demonstrate what they know, value, and can do. The following represent a variety of ways in which students and teachers can assess learning. Teachers should use all assessment opportunities to reflect upon the effectiveness of their instructional design and should incorporate student feedback into their planning of subsequent learning experiences.

<th>Student Portfolios</th>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Portfolios, a useful way to manage and store student artwork, contain samples of student work throughout the art-making process. The portfolio is a powerful assessment tool representing a rich source of authentic information on progress and best efforts.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The portfolio may include:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- samples of work such as paintings, drawings, or prints in progress as well as best efforts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- samples of reflective writing or sketches from a journal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- responses to own or others’ work</td>
</tr>
<tr>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>- explanations of steps and processes used and difficulties encountered</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- media products, including pictures, photographs, lists of resources</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Observation | Watching students engaged in classroom art activities gives valuable information of students' learning process and provides information about:
- students' day-to-day performance
- work habits and attitudes towards art
- frustrations, joys, and levels of persistence
- feelings and attitudes towards art
- ability to work independently and collaboratively in making art
- preferred learning styles
- development of students’ ideas and understandings |
| Questioning | The kinds of questions teachers ask send powerful messages to students about what is valued in the learning process. High-level, open-ended questions challenge students to think critically. Open-ended questions allow students to organize and interpret information, make generalizations, clarify and express their own thinking, understand concepts, and demonstrate originality and creative ability. |
| Art Journals/Sketchbooks | Encourage students to write reflectively about their arts experiences and to sketch ideas that may be used for future work. These journals and sketchbooks can be used by students and teachers to assess learning that has taken place and to set goals for future work. Refer to Appendix D |
| Peer Feedback through Group Discussion | On-going, meaningful conversations about concepts, ideas, and works in progress are essential in order that students have opportunities to find and develop their voices, to practise respectful listening, and to celebrate one another’s work. |
| Performance Assessment | Performance assessment allows learners to develop and apply criteria to assess performance of the task. One of the ways in which teachers can help clarify assessment criteria for students is through the use of rubrics. Rubrics add structure to the assessment process by describing the criteria used to assess student performance. They can be developed by teachers or students individually or together. They may provide a fixed measurement scale or simply a means for reflective response to general criteria. Students must be aware of the criteria being used to assess before beginning each project. |
| Student-Teacher Conversations/ Portfolio Reviews | These conversations yield valuable information about learning habits, feelings, and attitudes. They provide immediate opportunities for looking at work to date and suggesting new directions. They allow for on-the-spot teaching and goal setting as well as summative assessment of portfolio work. |
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Questionnaires or Surveys</th>
<th>A questionnaire or survey might follow an activity or project to determine how well the team functioned and how well the individual participated and contributed. These may be developed independently or collaboratively by teachers and students.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Anecdotal Records        | Anecdotal records may include comments, questions, and observations. They provide direct information on how and what students are learning throughout the process. They can be collected while students are:
                              • engaged in open-ended tasks
                              • working in small or large group activities
                              • participating in a celebration of their work
                              • engaged in conversations with the teacher or with one another about their learning
                              • responding to the work of others |
| Self- Evaluation         | Students evaluate their own work using a rubric or other tool.                                                                                                                                          |
| Checklists               | Checklists used in conjunction with other assessments give the teacher and learner a useful strategy for focusing on specific tasks.                                                                      |

Program Requirements

The quality of visual arts instruction, the experience of the teacher, the amount of time on task, and a supportive school culture each directly affects student achievement.

The learning continuum must be supported by the provision of sufficient time and resources to ensure that students experience a broad range of arts learning experiences that are sequential, comprehensive, planned, co-ordinated, and related to the organizing strands and outcomes. (Foundation for the Atlantic Canada Arts Education Curriculum; Document 843280, page 13)

Students will be expected to have achieved the outcomes for grades 9/10 visual arts prior to beginning the grade 110 visual arts course.
List of Supplies

The following list includes many of the items necessary in order to teach this course. This list is neither exhaustive nor mandatory. Teachers may not need all items listed if the projects they choose to present do not require them. Conversely, teachers may need additional materials and supplies to complete projects they choose to present to reach the desired curricular outcomes.

Teachers should request, from the supplier, a safety data sheet for materials that have any degree of toxicity. This data sheet should be kept in the classroom.

Suggestions for Assessment

*Note - The following suggestions for assessment fall under the heading of Creating, Making, and Presenting and apply to GCO 1 and GCO 2. Many types of assessment strategies can be used to evaluate student artwork. Portfolios may be evaluated as a whole or assignments may be evaluated individually.

There are a number of criteria that can be used in assessing individual student assignments including but not limited to:

- Competence and an understanding of handling materials
- Care in the final presentation of work
- A sensitivity to the relationship between subject and material
- Observational skills
- Flexibility in ways of working
- Degree of independence
- Understanding of design elements
- The expressive quality of the work
  - Evidence of originality and innovation
  - Time-management
  - Organization and preparation
  - Openness to suggestions for improvement
  - Appropriate use of the language and terminology of Visual Art
  - Participation in class discussions

A 3-step process for assessing some longer assignments:

- Concept development – students develop original ideas through research, brainstorming, and sketching.
- Effort and involvement – students are engaged and focused during the planning and creation of their artwork/project.
- Completion – The initial concept has evolved and resulted in a well-developed piece and completed within the desired timeframe.

Other evaluation might involve:

- Verbal and audio/visual presentations
- Involvement in class discussions
- Studio projects
- Presentation of found visual examples
- Journals
- Sketchbooks
- Image identification and comparison testing
- Group or individual critiques in written form or as a verbal presentation.
- Peer or self-evaluation

- Student goes beyond completion: All assignments are completed. Most assignments are completed. Fails to complete some assignments.
- High quality assignments: Work is of consistent quality. Student takes time to look for errors and tries to improve. Work is completed to minimal standards with little or no reworking. Work looks rushed.
- Work is done independently and exceeds project goals: Work shows an understanding of project concepts. With teacher guidance majority of work shows an understanding of project concepts. Work does not show an understanding of project concepts.
- Work is technically superior and includes subtle characteristics: Technical skills and use of materials adds feeling to the work. Work shows limited skills and technical ability. Work lacks control or clarity.
- Student strives for mastery: Work shows distinct improvement. Work shows marginal improvement. Work does not show improvement.
- Work is consistently original and innovative. Student develops ideas independently: Work is often innovative. Students develop original ideas with teacher input. Work shows limited originality. Students rely on teacher for input for ideas. Work lacks originality. Students are entirely dependent on teacher input.

Collaborative Work

- Have students respond in writing – reflecting on the involvement of each group member and the collective work.
- Have individual students present a portfolio of preliminary work.
- Have students/groups evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of their project

It is recommended that teachers develop their own rubrics for specific assignments. The following is an example of a possible rubric for assessing the student’s use of the elements of art.

Sample assessment rubric of elements in student’s work:

Suggestions for Assessment

The following suggestions for assessment apply to the Understanding and Connecting Contexts of Time, Place, and Community strand and apply to GCO 3, GCO 4, and GCO 5.

Assessment of Understanding and Connecting Contexts of Time, Place, and Community can be achieved through a variety of formats. These include:

- Verbal and audio/visual presentations
- Written essays
- Involvement in class discussions
- Studio projects
- Presentation of found visual examples
- Journals
- Sketchbooks
- Image identification and comparison testing

There are a number of criteria that can be used in assessing student assignments. These include:

- Concept development
- Competence and understanding of handling materials
- Demonstration of an understanding of the concept
- Presentation of material – design layout, readability, quality of information given
- Degree of independence

APPENDIX A.1
An Approach for Art Analysis

When looking at a work of art, students might be asked to:

Describe it (Elements of art—generally the what of art)
What kinds of things do you see in this artwork?
What words would you use to describe this artwork?
How would you describe the lines in this picture? The shapes? The colours? What does this artwork show?
Look at this artwork for a moment. What observations can you make about it?
How would you describe this artwork to a person who could not see it?
If there are people in this artwork, how would you describe them? Are they like you or different?
How would you describe (the place depicted in) this artwork?

Analyze it (Principles of art—generally the how of art)
Which objects seem closer to you? Further away?
What can you tell me about the colours in this artwork?
What colour is used the most in this artwork?
What makes this artwork look crowded?
What can you tell me about the person in this artwork?
What can you tell me about how this person lived? How did you arrive at that idea?
What do you think is the most important part of this artwork?
How do you think the artist created this work?
What questions would you ask the artist about this work, if s/he were here?

Interpret it (The why of art)
What title would you give to this artwork?
What do you think is happening in this artwork?
What do you think is going on in this artwork?
What do you think this artwork is about?
Pretend you are inside this artwork:
· What do you think this (object) was used for?
· Why do you suppose the artist created this artwork?
· What do you think it would be like to live in this artwork?
Support your statements with evidence from the artwork itself.

Information (who, what, when)
Identify the artist.

Appendix D
Sketchbook Ideas

Observation Drawing

- Draw a variety of objects from observation (your hand, a shoe, a knapsack, a houseplant, a power tool, a musical instrument, etc.). Consider drawing it several times from different points of view.
- Draw a detail or a corner of the room you are in
- Draw an object from observation. Transform it into something else (from imagination).
- Fill a page with several blind contour drawings of a single object like your hand, a shoe, a power tool, a plant, etc.

Collage

- Create a collage on a theme (a colour, a subject, etc.)
- Draw an object from observation. Fill the object shape with colours/pictures from magazines. Fill the background with contrasting pictures.
- Create a ‘creature’ using collaged pictures from magazines. Exaggerate for effect.
- Create a ‘visual pun’ using collaged images. Include a background.

Mark Making

- Fill a page with marks made from a variety of materials – label each one.
- Create a ‘scribble’ design. Fill part of it with any of the following – shaded pencil, shaded colour pencil, pointillist shading with black or coloured pens.
- Fill a page with 50 different ways to make lines. This could be one continuous line that changes, or 50 different short lines. Use a variety of materials for this.
- Collect texture rubbings from different surfaces. Assemble them together on one page.

Other

- Design a pop-up page in your sketchbook
- Attach several small envelopes or pockets to a page in your sketchbook. Decorate them and fill them with interesting images you find in magazines, tiny drawings, small handmade books, etc.
- Take a picture from a magazine. Cut it in half. Glue one half to a page in your sketchbook. Draw the missing half, including shading and/or colour.
- Illustrate a favourite song using the materials of your choice.
